

I am diabolically apposed to softening the no call list laws in IN. If I want to be contacted by an establishment I will give them my permission.

Since the no call list law came into effect I feel like I have gotten peace and privacy back in my life. Before it was not unusual for me to get 30 un-wanted calls a week.

Even though I have caller ID I still have to go to the phone to check who is calling every time the phone rings and believe me it rings enough without "annoying telemarketing and solicitation calls".

Sincerely, TJ geary
